

Husker Defense De-Claws Tigers

Columbia, Mo. — The sign of a football team's greatness can be seen in its ability to respond at the end, when time is of the essence and the game is on the line. That's how Nebraska showed its greatness in defeating Missouri, 6-0, last Saturday before 72,001 fans at Faurot Field and a spellbound, split-national audience on ABC television.

The Cornhuskers were locked in a 0-0 tie, with 2:36 remaining, when they got the football 64 yards away from Missouri's end zone. With sophomore quarterback Turner Gill directing the heroic march, they covered those 64 yards in 10 plays to score with only 23 seconds left. Phil Bates crashed into the end zone from three yards away to keep Nebraska the only undefeated and untied team in Big Eight Conference play.

Junior Kevin Seibel missed the extra-point kick, however, thus ending his school-record string of successful kicks at 56.

The touchdown also extended Nebraska's string of games in which it has not been shut out to 93.

The poise of Gill and Nebraska's defense, which shut down Missouri's offense both on the ground and in the air, combined to produce the stirring victory.

Gill completed three passes on the march to victory, one for 24 yards to split end Todd Brown on a critical third-down-and-10 from his own 49-yard line. One play later, Gill and Brown hooked up again for 21 yards to the Missouri four-yard line.

For the two clutch receptions, his only ones of the game, Brown was chosen the ABC television "Outstanding Player of the Game" for Nebraska.

I-back Roger Craig carried 17 times and gained 94 yards to increase his season rushing total to 768 yards.

Defensive end Tony Felici led the Cornhusker Black Shirts in tackles, with three unassisted and nine assists for a total of 12. Linebacker Steve Damkroger was credited with 10 tackles.

Roger Craig gets a block on the corner by Phil Bates and runs for some of his game-leading yardage.

Phil Bates goes over the top for tough yardage on a short yardage situation.

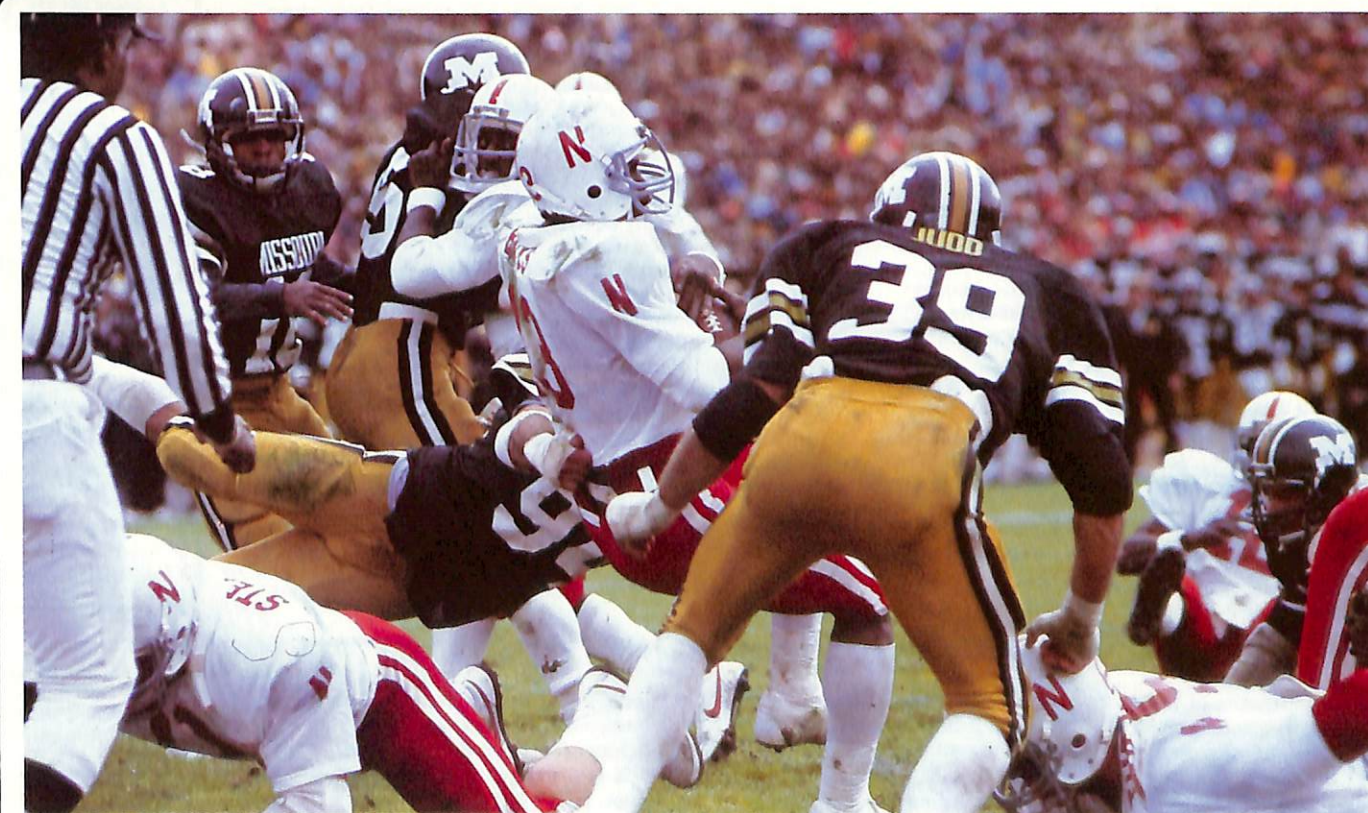

Tony Felici and Tom Godowsky close in on a Missouri runner as the Nebraska defense continues its amazing string of quarters without allowing a touchdown.

Phil Bates makes one of the biggest runs of his career as he sets up the lone Husker touchdown of the day with this long dash.

Mike Rozier has a lead blocker in Tom Carlstrom(78) and looks for running room against the Tigers.

There wasn't a lot of room, but enough for Phil Bates to find the end zone and score this game-winner with 23 seconds left to play.

Lockerroom Chatter

The Huskers

Tom Osborne, head coach — "That's the greatest defensive game I've ever been involved with. I know they weren't happy with the way they played last week at Iowa State and would be giving us their best shot. And they certainly got our best shot. Iowa was the best defense we played before this game, but Missouri is the best we've gone against now. I was proud of the way our players held their poise in a tight game and then came through when the chips were down at the end."

Charlie McBride, defensive line coach — "This team of ours played the best defense of any team I've ever been around. I'll tell you what says a lot about our players: Missouri had a broken play in the fourth quarter which resulted in a 37-yard gain. Their quarterback couldn't find the guy to hand it off to and just shuffled a little forward pass behind the line to his tailback. That's when our kids had to decide whether to give the game to them or buckle down and play twice as hard. I was really proud of the way they responded."

Phil Bates, fullback — "I knew we were going to win. It was only a matter of time. In some games, it just takes more time than others. This was like the Auburn game. We pushed them around, but we couldn't get the ball in the end zone. We'd move, move, move, and then suddenly come to a halt."

Steve Damkroger, linebacker — "This had to be our best defensive game. Missouri had trouble getting across our 50-yard line and didn't score a point. You'd have to say we played awfully well."

Roger Craig, I-back — "We had a lot of breakdowns or else we could have blown them away. We all felt that way. It was a matter of getting our offense together."

Jeff Krejci, safety — "We had a lot of poise against a high-powered offense for four straight quarters. We knew at halftime that Missouri's defense was all fired up and was going to give our offense a lot of trouble. Our goal was to play better than Missouri's defense. We figure if a team doesn't score, it's not going to beat you."

The Tigers

Warren Powers, head coach — "It was a very tough, physical ball game. I thought both teams showed a lot of poise in a hard-hitting football game. I think our defense played super. They kept turning them back and turning them back, but offensively, we didn't do a whole lot. It was a tough one to lose. When kids play their hearts out there for 59 minutes and lose it in the last minute, it's a hard thing to swallow. They deserved better than that, but they didn't get it. Nebraska deserved to win."

Brad Edelman, center — "I can't say Nebraska is better or worse than anyone else. They are a very tough, cohesive team. It's very tough to gain an advantage against Nebraska or sustain it. I think we played an outstanding ball game."

Van Darkow, linebacker — "Nobody quit. We gave it our all. It just goes to show you what you can do when you play that hard. We just kept coming strong at them. We should have been able to do that on defense for 60 minutes, but they came strong at us, too."

Mike Hyde, quarterback — "Nebraska had us backed up good all day. They didn't give us anything. They capitalized when they needed to. They are one heck of a team, all around. We moved the ball, but it just seemed that we had too far to go all the time. They were playing deep on the pass coverage, so we just tried to take what they gave us."

Oops, we fumbled

In the most recent monthly issue of Huskers Illustrated, we had a costly fumble in the Big Red Mailbag section.

A reader wrote, asking for an update on Bill Jennings, Nebraska's head football coach from 1957-61. Because of a mixup in communication, we gave an update on the wrong Bill Jennings.

Bill Jennings, ex-MU head football coach, lives in Aurora, Colo., adjacent to a golf course. Last fall, he was offensive coordinator at Douglas County High School in Castle Rock, Colo., helping steer fullback-linebacker Mike Knox to the Husker program. Jennings said Knox was a "can't miss" prospect. Knox, a second-team linebacker, is the only first-year freshman on the NU travel roster.

Another well-known Bill Jennings still lives in Lincoln. This Bill Jennings retired from officiating after working the 1980 Alabama-Arkansas Sugar Bowl Game. We will have expanded updates on both interesting men in the upcoming monthly issue of Huskers Illustrated.

The Way We See It...

Tom Hedrick

KU Sports Network

"KU has an awfully good defense and an exceptional kicking game, but the Jayhawks come up short in the offensive line. Nebraska has a great edge in depth and since Turner Gill has taken over at quarterback, the Huskers have outscored their opponents, 114-3. I'm enormously impressed with Gill both as a passer and as a runner. KU and Nebraska have not had a close game since the Huskers beat KU and David Jaynes, 10-9, in Lincoln eight years ago. Nebraska 35, Kansas 10."

Rick Gosselin

UPI Sports Editor, Kansas City

"It's not a question of Nebraska winning. The Cornhuskers have beaten the Jayhawks 12 straight times and Kansas is obviously mismatched again. The question is two-fold — will Nebraska top 50 points and will Kansas be shut out? Nebraska has registered 50 or more points in six of the last 10 meetings and shut out the Jayhawks an equal number of times. If Nebraska can shut out Missouri on the road, it can shut out Kansas at home. Final score: Nebraska 37, Kansas 0."

Steve Sinclair

Omaha World-Herald

"Nebraska again won't have any trouble scoring points on Kansas, but the most dominating force will be the Husker defense. The Jayhawks will become the fifth straight team unable to score a touchdown on the Black Shirts. Nebraska 42, Kansas 0."

Jack Payne

KFAB Radio, Omaha

"This Nebraska team has really come together as a unit, grown up and keeps improving in all phases of the game. I'm particularly impressed with the depth. NU's balanced offense-defense makes for a great football team. Nebraska 45, Kansas 3."

The Huskers Say...

Huskers Illustrated

"Turner Gill showed the mark of a great athlete, ignoring the frustration of a shutout to march Nebraska to a dramatic touchdown against Missouri. Such an experience, under the gun, will do more for his confidence than a 21-point win could have accomplished. The Huskers return to their machine gun attack. Nebraska 49, Kansas 0."

Adrian Fiala

KFOR Radio, Lincoln

"Turner Gill and Nebraska's defense have come of age. Kansas has an excellent kicking game. If the Jayhawks score, I suspect it will be by a field goal. Gill played tremendously under pressure against Missouri. The history at home against Kansas....52-7, 42-0....would indicate the story. The Huskers are developing into an excellent team. Nebraska 42, Kansas 6."

Chuck Woodling

Lawrence World-Herald

"KU will be going to Lincoln hoping for two things: (1) that it doesn't get anyone seriously injured; and (2) that the Jayhawks don't get embarrassed. We don't pick games or scores in Kansas. But look at the Nebraska-Kansas State (49-3) and Kansas-Kansas State (17-14) and that'll give you an idea."

Steve Richardson

Kansas City Star

"In its first three games, Kansas lived with tailback Kerwin Bell, a good defense and an excellent kicking game. Since Bell was lost in the Kentucky game with a knee injury, the Jayhawks haven't lived on offense. They went into a coma. Dino Bell, Kerwin's younger brother, will be running the ball this week. But it's not the same. Nebraska 38, Kansas 7."

Dick Janda

KOLN-TV, Lincoln

"It looked like Kansas could have a good year if Kerwin Bell had stayed healthy. He's gone and Kansas has been going downhill ever since. The Jayhawks' beak has been dulled and while Nebraska's offense sputtered against Missouri, it should roll against Kansas. Nebraska 45, Kansas 3."

Injury Report

Even though the 6-0 win over Missouri was perhaps Nebraska's most physical game of the season, the Cornhuskers came out of it relatively injury-free.

Ten players reported to NU's training room on Sunday with various bumps and bruises. A shoulder injury to No. 3 fullback Mark Moravec was considered the only serious one.

Coach Osborne's Evaluation

The fact that Nebraska head football coach Tom Osborne gave his team a Sunday off following its 6-0 victory over Missouri did not mean that he was looking past this week's Homecoming opponent, Kansas. Osborne intended no disrespect for the Jayhawks. "It has nothing to do with Kansas," he explained.

"It's just that time of year when we feel the players need a day off. After seven games and almost 11 straight weeks of work without a day off, it's time."

Kansas offers a basis for complacency, of course. Nebraska has defeated the Jayhawks 12 straight times, stretching back to 1967 and 1968 when Kansas won two in a row from the Cornhuskers. Of Nebraska's 12 consecutive victories, six have been by shutout.

But Osborne isn't overlooking this year's youthful Kansas team, despite the victory string and despite the absence of KU's phenominal sophomore tailback Kerwin Bell, who has been lost to the Jayhawks for the season with a knee injury.

Osborne knows Kansas has a 5-2 record just like Nebraska's, and he knows coach Don Fambrough's team is still smarting from last year's 54-0 defeat, one of the worst in the series which began back in 1892.

Both Nebraska and Kansas are coming off emotional fourth-quarter victories this week. While the Cornhuskers marched to a 6-0 victory over Missouri, Kansas defeated intrastate rival Kansas State, 17-14, in a Sunflower State Showdown at Lawrence. Sophomore Bruce Kallmeyer kicked a 28-yard field goal with 1:33 remaining in the game to lift Kansas to victory.

The Jayhawk touchdowns were scored by fullback E.J. Jones, who capped an 80-yard drive with a four-yard run, and freshman tailback Dino Bell, Kerwin's younger brother. Dino's touchdown came on a 37-yard run, the longest run from scrimmage for Kansas this season. Bell gained 87 yards in 16 carries.

Sophomore quarterback Frank Seurer completed 12 of 16 passes for 160 yards.

The victory over Kansas State was KU's first in Big Eight Conference play. The Jayhawks opened with non-conference victories over Tulsa (15-11), Oregon (19-10), Kentucky (21-16) and Arkansas State (17-16) before losing to Big Eight foes Oklahoma State (20-7) and Oklahoma (45-7). However, Kansas fought the Sooners to a 7-7 tie until late in the second quarter.

Kansas has not been statistically impressive on offense this season, ranking at the bottom of the Big Eight in three of four major offensive categories heading into last weekend's game with Kansas State.

Nebraska will have to beware of an emotional letdown following the Missouri game, described by Osborne as one of the most demanding games, both physically and mentally, the Cornhuskers have played.

"I was concerned about the emotional overtones of the game. I doubt if Missouri will play anyone harder or better than they played us. The Missouri game was a big game, against a good team, and I think the players are as happy about winning it as any they've played," said Osborne.

"We could have executed better, but we were especially pleased with the win, the poise, and the effort our players gave. A late win like that can make a team feel better than a big win, where you're adding up the points all day."

Nebraska has not rallied for a come-from-behind victory like that since the 1977 Liberty Bowl, when the Cornhuskers scored on a pair of fourth-quarter touchdown passes by Randy Garcia to overcome a 17-7 deficit and defeat North Carolina, 21-17.

The last time a Nebraska team went scoreless for three quarters before rallying to win was in the 1974 Sugar Bowl game against Florida. The Cornhuskers trailed the Gators, 10-0, going into the fourth quarter and scored 13 points, the final three on a Mike Coyle field goal with 1:46 remaining, to win.

Nebraska's shutout of Missouri was the Huskers' second in their last three games. Nebraska has not allowed a touchdown in 16 consecutive quarters.

According to Osborne, against Missouri: "We played well with the standard defense and the zone coverage, the defense we use most of the time. We had good blitzes with six or seven people rushing, and we had good pressure even when we had just two men rushing and everyone else playing man-to-man coverage. I thought our defensive coaches mixed up the defenses very well and gave Missouri quarterback (Mike Hyde) a lot of different pictures."

Of Missouri's success in limiting Nebraska's offense to 321 yards and only six points, Osborne said: "Missouri has a good defense. At times they whipped us man-to-man, without stunting. Missouri gambled a lot and came out ahead more often than not with those gambles. We missed some audibles, and at times we just didn't pick up the blitzes."

Osborne was most concerned, however, because, at times, "we didn't execute well with procedure and holding penalties. We had people going the wrong way, and we had some missed assignments," he said.

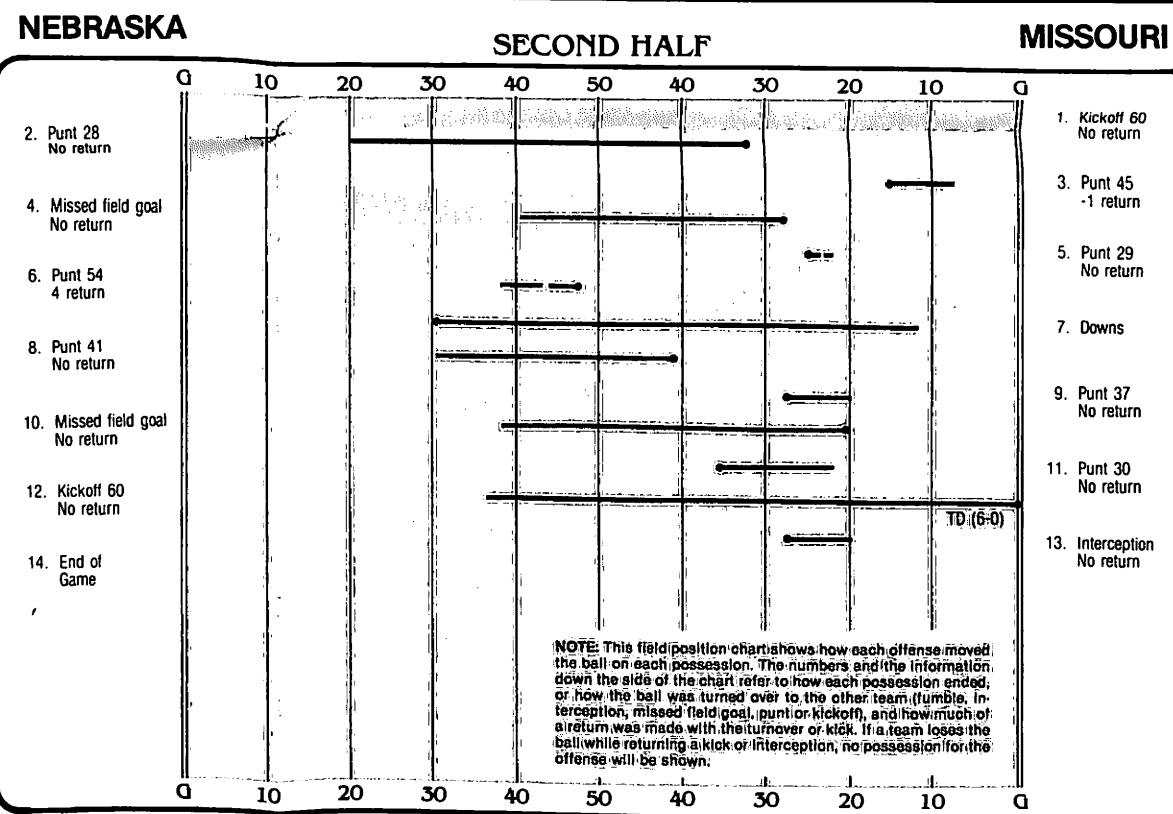

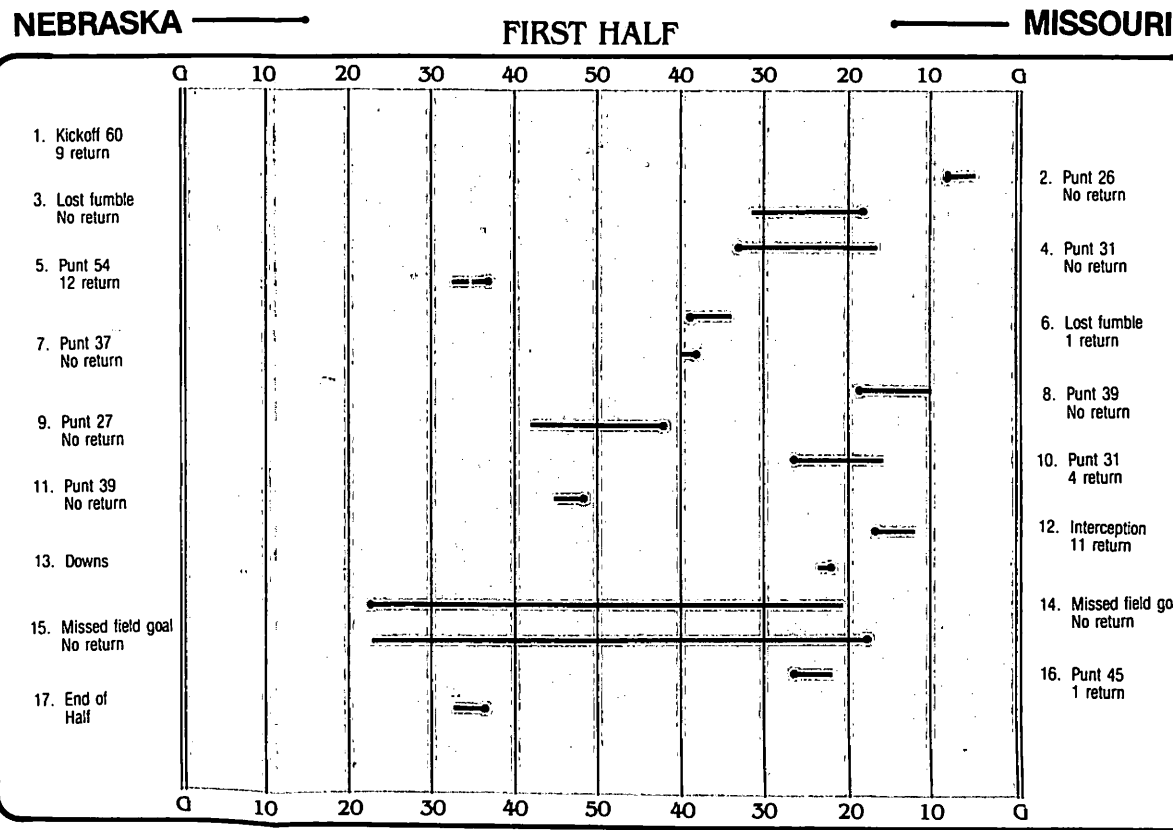

Just how good is this Nebraska defense? Only time (and late tests with Iowa State and Oklahoma) will tell. But try these comparisons on for size:

The 1970 national champions of Bob Devaney held only ONE opponent to no touchdowns (28-0 over Army). The 1971 national champs blanked three foes and held six others to a touchdown or less (in a 12-game regular season) before blasting Alabama, 38-6, in the Orange Bowl. But only two of those shutouts were back-to-back, flanked by a 42-6 win over Utah State and a 41-13 poking of Oklahoma State.

The most amazing streak of defense in modern times by the Huskers came in 1972 when the Orange Bowl champions in Devaney's final season followed an opening loss to UCLA (20-17) with wins over six foes by a margin of 315-14, blanking Minnesota, Missouri, Kansas and Oklahoma State on consecutive weekends. Only three foes all season managed more than two touchdowns against Nebraska that season, with Notre Dame falling in the Miami classic, 40-6.

After the next four games, Husker fans may want to make some more comparisons.
